ReWRITING the Basics Anne Haas Dyson, 2013 What are the real basics of writing how should they be taught and what do they look like in children's worlds In her new book Anne Haas Dyson shows how highly scripted writing curricula and regimented class routines work against young children's natural social learning processes Readers will have a front row seat in Mrs Bee's kindergarten and Mrs Kay's 1st grade class where these dedicated teachers taught writing basics in schools serving predominately low income children of color The children it turns out had their own expectations for one another's actions during writing time Driven by desires for companionship and meaning they used available linguistic and multimodal resources to construct their shared lives In so doing they stretch enrich and ultimately transform our own understandings of the basics ReWRITING the Basics goes beyond critiquing traditional writing basics to place them in the linguistic diversity and multimodal texts of children's everyday worlds This engaging work Illustrates how scripted uniform curricula can reduce the resources of so called at risk children Provides insight into how children may situate writing within the relational ethics and social structures of childhood cultures Offers guiding principles for creating a program that will expand children's possibilities in ways that are compatible with human sociability Includes examples of children's writing reflections on research methods and demographic tables Dyson's ethnographies offer new ways of thinking about writing time and remind us of the importance of play talk and social relationships in children's literacy learning If every literacy researcher could write like Dyson teachers would want to read about research If policymakers took her insights on board classrooms might become more respectful and enjoyable spaces for literacy teaching and learning that soar way above the basics Barbara Comber Queensland University of Technology Australia
