How is an egg made?

We know that hens lay eggs, but what is the science behind how that egg is formed? Here's a look at the whole process:

1 Each day ...

The chicken egg starts as an egg yolk inside a hen. A yolk (called an oocyte) is produced by the hen's ovary in a process called ovulation.

2 18 minutes

The oocyte is released into the oviduct (a long, spiraling tube in the hen's reproductive system).

3 2-3 hours

It takes approximately 3 hours for the albumen to be deposited around the yolk. As the albumen is formed, the yolk rotates, twisting the albuminous fibres to form the chalazae.

4 1 hour

Formation of shell membranes takes a little over an hour.

5 16 hours

The egg spends most of the time in the uterus. Initially some water is added, making the outer white thinner. Then the shell material (mainly calcium carbonate) is added. The egg gets its "bloom," a thin coating which helps it pass through the cloaca smoothly, just before the egg is laid.

6 Minutes

A series of small muscle contractions permits the egg through the cloaca. It stretches outward to release the egg.

During formation, the egg moves through the oviduct small end first. Just before laying, it is rotated and laid large end first. A young hen lays small eggs. The size increases as she gets older.

The whole process takes about 24 hours and begins again shortly after an egg is laid.

Farm fresh

Less than 21 days old. Misshapen eggs are used for other purposes e.g. mayonnaise and dried egg produce. The hens are confined to a cage size providing 750 cm² per hen. Perching space is available at 25 cm per bird.

Value added

Obtained by changing the diet of the hen. More vitamins or omega3 produce an egg with a higher rate of vitamins.

Free range

One acre of field for every 400 hens. Hens are free to roam during the daytime. Buildings used to house hens are typically well ventilated with an area of wood shavings and access to food and water.

Organic

From hens kept in a similar environment to free range but are fed on organic produce and roam on land classified as organic. They are not fed antibiotics to promote growth.

Eggs I Have Laid:

Eggs I Have Laid Meredith Willson, 2012-12-15 Back in print the playful and personal memoir of Meredith Willson's creative tribulations and triumphs before The Music Man. Composer, musical director, writer, lecturer, and piccoloist Meredith Willson laid many eggs throughout his career but not all those eggs would hatch quite so gloriously as his Broadway hit The Music Man. In Eggs I Have Laid Willson genially chronicles the failures that he faced as he made his place in show business during the pivotal early 1950s when radio was being overtaken by television. From Hollywood to New York, London, and Paris and back to his hometown of Mason City, Iowa, Willson sets each scene vividly, bringing to life his encounters with zeitgeist stars from collaborators Tallulah Bankhead and Fred Allen to Orson Welles and Carmen Miranda. His signature wit excels as he relates his tales of eggs dropped, notable among them the lavishly produced variety program The Big Show, his ill-fated attempt to be a radio bulwark against the encroaching tide of television. First published in 1955, Eggs I Have Laid features delightful curiosities like an eight-page platonic dialogue about quitting smoking and the lyrics to a love song with the occupancy limits of the New York Fire Code as its central metaphor. It is at once a vivid chronicle and a trove of insight from the hilarious, perseverant mind of Meredith Willson.
