Reisner examines the evolution of these beliefs from the earliest dynastic periods through the later phases of Egyptian civilization. Drawing upon extensive archaeological evidence and textual analysis, The Egyptian Conception of Immortality offers insights into the rituals, funerary practices, and religious texts that shaped the Egyptian understanding of what awaited them beyond the earthly realm. Discover the significance of mummification, the weighing of the heart ceremony, and the journey through the underworld, all of which played crucial roles in ensuring a successful transition to immortality. Osiris and the Egyptian Resurrection E. A. Wallis Budge, 2015-06-13 Excerpt from Osiris and the Egyptian Resurrection. The chapters printed in these volumes are the result of a study undertaken with the object of attempting to discover the source of the fundamental beliefs of the indigenous Religion of Ancient Egypt, to trace their development through a period of some two score centuries, and to ascertain what were the foreign influences which first modified Egyptian beliefs, then checked their growth, and finally overthrew them. There is no doubt that the beliefs examined herein are of indigenous origin, Nilotic or Sudanic, in the broadest signification of the word, and I have endeavoured to explain those which cannot be elucidated in any other way by the evidence which is afforded by the Religions of the modern peoples who live on the great rivers of East, West, and Central Africa. The central figure of the ancient Egyptian Religion was Osiris, and the chief fundamentals of his cult were the belief in his divinity, death, resurrection, and absolute control of the destinies of the bodies and souls of men. The central point of each Osirian's Religion was his hope of resurrection in a transformed body, and of immortality, which could only be realized by him through the death and resurrection of Osiris. I have therefore made Osiris and the beliefs which grew up under his cult the central consideration of this enquiry and have grouped about the history of the god the facts in modern African Religions which are similar and which I consider to be cognate to the old beliefs The general argument of the book is indicated in the following paragraphs The materials now available for the enquiry may be divided roughly into two main classes 1 The Magical Religious and Mythological Texts written by native Egyptians for Egyptians About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works

Hidden Futures Jan Maarten Bremer, Theo P. J. van den Hout, Rudolph Peters, 1994 There are probably as many views on death as there are civilizations even within one civilization views may shift from one century to another as is exemplified by ancient Greece This has been observed in our own era as well previously death seemed to be banned to sterile hospital beds and funeral homes nowadays dying tends to become more social and comes into the open again On the whole a renewed interest in death is noticeable and the present book is an expression of that trend This volume of essays grew out of a symposium held in December 1992 at the University of Amsterdam and organized by the Institute for Mediterranean Studies They are arranged in four sections viz general literary philosophical and archaeological After four general articles concerning the views on death and immortality held in Ancient Egypt Hittite Anatolia Homeric and Classical Greece and Israel in Biblical times some of the cultures not yet represented are dealt with in the other sections Rome and Italy in the literary and archaeological sections and the Arabic Islamic world in the literary and philosophical sections All papers conclude with bibliographies and there is a subject index to the book as a whole Although representing only some of the many cultures once bordering the Mediterranean the contributions do reflect the wide variety of ideas on death and immortality to be found in that area As such this book is of interest not only to specialists in the various fields treated here but also to historians and students of comparative religion and literature as well as to the general academic reader
