Toxic and Healthy Relationship of Teenagers to Parents,

For today's generation. Some of the teenagers no longer respect their parents, some are rude and impatient. They may be learning that through their parents our society, but teenagers generation right now isn't worst at all. Teenagers, young people learn technology these days, especially this pandemic. They know more devices than adults do. There are more intelligent and open minded being straight forward. Back in the past teenagers were not that independent. They had restrictions for almost everything. But nowadays teenagers are pretty independent and they have freedom to experience many things and that's why they are learning how to lead a life. It's good to be independent but at the same time some teenagers are doing it wrong. But there are very few of them who are doing this. Otherwise most of the teenagers are now conscious about their life and future. They are very developed technologically today.

What do we think is the reason why teenagers act like this to their parents?

When teenagers are disrespectful to their parents, it's sometimes a sign that they have emotional needs that aren't being met. Sometimes the disrespectful behavior is a way of getting attention. Other times, it's an indication that they don't feel accepted. Sit down with your teenager and tell her that you're there for her if she wants to talk about something. Remind her that you love her unconditionally. Keep in mind that adolescents often feel powerless. As part of the process of growing up, teenagers need to differentiate themselves from their parents.

Toxic and Healthy Relationship of Teenagers to Friends

Toxic friendships are social relationships that make pre-teens and teenagers feel bad about themselves. If pre-teens and teenagers know what good friendships look like, it can help them avoid toxic friendships. Pre-teens and teenagers might need support to manage or end toxic friendships. Friendships are incredibly important during adolescence. Teen friendships help young people feel a sense of acceptance and belonging. They support the development of compassion, caring, and empathy, and they are a big part of forming a sense of identity outside the family. Moreover, adolescent friendships can be incredibly supportive in helping teens to weather difficult times they make your life meaningful. They provide social and emotional support, ease feelings of loneliness, and help you feel happier and more satisfied with life. Some friendships might not have such a positive effect. Others might be downright toxic. Toxic friendships can take different forms, but they generally drain you mentally and have a way of bringing you down instead of building you up.
