

The Four Elements

Arts Activity

The four elements of nature – earth, water, fire, and air – are fundamental forces that shape the world around us.

Elements Exploration Stations

Set up four sensory activity stations for children to explore, each representing one of the four natural elements.

Using four large trays, fill the trays with materials to represent the elements with the materials outlined below.

You will need
• 4 large trays

Earth <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • sand, soil, pebbles, flowers, plastic figurines of animals and plants, pine and sticks 	Fire <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Red, yellow, and orange paper, markers, crayons, or paints Optional: Water, fuel, warm bottle of water 	Water <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Water, funnels, strainers, cups, toy boats Optional: Blue food coloring 	Air <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • Straws, fans, and small light objects such as tissue paper and feathers

The Four Elements Sensory Stations

Earth Station: Fill with sand, soil, pebbles, flowers, and plastic figurines of animals and flowers to represent habitats. Provide tools such as pots and shovels.

Fire Station: Provide red, yellow, and orange paper, markers, crayons, or paints for children to create a fire scene. They can cut paper into flame shapes or paint in colour a 'fire' on a large piece of paper. For an added sensory element, sprinkle glitter or foil on the flames to give them sparkle, representing fire's flickering glow. For an additional sensory element, add a water bottle with warm water for children to experience.

Water Station: Fill a tray with water and provide children with funnels, strainers, cups and toy boats to watch the water move. Optionally, add blue food coloring to add a sensory element.

Air Station: Fill with straws, fans, and small light objects such as tissue paper and feathers. Support children to observe how they float and move through the air. Support them to experiment with a heavier object such as a plastic toy or stone.

The Four Elements

Age 4-5

The Four Elements Scavenger Hunt

Guide children to find objects in nature or in their environment that represent the four elements. You can explain that each child will be a Nature Explorer, looking for clues to match each element.

Support their learning by asking guiding questions as to why the materials they chose match earth, fire, water, or air. They may find a feather that floats in the air, pebbles that remind them of the earth that supports plants, or red leaves to represent the colour of fire.

Optional Activity Extension: Four Elements Collage

After gathering the natural items, bring the children back together. Encourage them to use the objects they found to make a Four Elements Collage on large paper. Support them to glue or just place the objects onto the paper, arranging them into sections representing the four elements.

Optionally, provide additional materials such as fabric scraps, twine, and foil to the children to add additional creative elements to their creation.

Adaptations for Older Children

Introduce the water cycle to add an additional 2024 element to the activity. Use our Water Cycle Station and support the children to create additional sensory trays to match each stage of the water cycle.

Set up sensory trays for each stage of the cycle in a circle where children move to separate through the water cycle. Support them to describe what is happening and support them to make the stage to something they have seen in nature, such as a waterlogged field after a rainy day.
