Environmental Changes Development:

Environmental Change and Human Development Chris Barrow,2014-04-04 Environmental Change and Human Development focuses on environmental change and human fortunes While there is a large and rapidly expanding literature dealing with how people affect the environment less attention has been given in recent years to how the environment shapes human development In an ever more crowded world there is a need for anticipatory environmental management and a crucial input to this is consideration of the interaction between environment and humans The environment is not as stable benign or controllable as people like to think The world population is vastly larger than it has ever been and is still growing and humans increasingly upset nature through pollution and other activities While modern communications may help environmental managers rapid travel also increases the dispersal of diseases and pests Technological advance and social development is not all beneficial some innovations have the effect of making people more vulnerable to disruption by natural disaster and citizens are often less able to cope with changed conditions than people were in the past Environmental Change and Human Development addresses key issues such as soil degradation natural climatic variations and volcanic activity and provides geography and earth sciences students with an essential introduction to the major debates surrounding this topic

Environmental Change and Sustainable Social Development Sven Hesse,2016-05-06 How does climate change affect social work and social development What actions are needed to integrate the three pillars of economic development environmental development and social protection With global warming and the increase in natural disasters due to the emission of greenhouse gases an alternative approach to the natural environment is vital The main focus of this volume is to emphasize the person in environment concept and to find measures for its implementation For social work the environment has traditionally been viewed as a world of human relationships as opposed to the interaction between man and environment This informative and incisively written edited collection brings together experts from around the world to analyze the person in environment concept and to find measures for its implementation Through the presentation of theoretical and practical platforms for environmental social work or green social work we hope to bring about a new paradigmatic shift in our attitude to the concept of person in environment

Facing Global Environmental Change Hans Günter Brauch,Navnita Chadha Behera,Patricia Kameri-Mbote,John Grin,Úrsula Oswald Spring,Béchir Chourou,Czeslaw Mesjasz,Heinz Krummenacher,2009-06-04 The year 2007 could perhaps accurately be described as the year when climate change finally received the attention that this challenge deserves globally Much of the information and knowledge that was created in this field during the year was the result of the findings of the Fourth session Report AR4 of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change IPCC which were disseminated on a large scale and reported extensively by the media This was the result not only of a heightened interest on the part of the public on various aspects of climate change but also because the IPCC itself proactively attempted to spread the findings of its AR4 to the public at large The interest generated on the scientific realities of climate change was further enhanced by the award of the Nobel Peace Prize to the IPCC and former Vice President of the US Al Gore. By taking this decision in favour of a leader who has done a great deal to create awareness on climate change and a body that assesses all scientific aspects of climate change and disseminates the result of its findings the Norwegian Nobel Committee has clearly drawn the link between climate change and peace in the world

Climate Change 2014 - Impacts, Adaptation and Vulnerability: Global and Sectoral Aspects Christopher B. Field, Vicente R. Barros, 2014-12-29 This latest Fifth Assessment Report of the Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change IPCC will again form the standard reference for all those concerned with climate change and its consequences including students researchers and policy makers in environmental science meteorology climatology biology ecology atmospheric chemistry and environmental policy

Department of Natural Resources,1999 Scientists generally agree that the globe has warmed over the past 40 years due largely to human activities that raise carbon dioxide levels in the atmosphere The Kyoto Protocol mandating limits on carbon emissions took effect in 2005 eight years after it was written but the United States the world s biggest carbon emitter has not ratified the treaty Debate over global warming has shifted from whether human activities are causing climate change to whether the possible changes will be severe enough to justify the hefty expense of developing cleaner energy technologies Economists and even some energy companies have recently proposed taxing carbon as an incentive to consumers and industry to shift to low carbon fuels Some multi state coalitions also hope to issue tradable emissions permits to industry
