Halides Diffusion-Data Compilation David Fisher, 2000-05-16 Halides continue to be an increasingly important industrial engineering resource as electrolytes and in heat treatment baths on the one hand and as the basis of exotic devices in the fields of optics electronics etc on the other At both of these extremes the gross or detailed movements of ions respectively are important factors There may also be an important geological need for a knowledge of halide diffusion data in an era when the migration or not of various waste materials including nuclear through natural seams of halide based minerals is of great concern

J. Fisher, 2014 The present issue comprises a compilation of data on diffusion in halides in either the crystalline or molten state that is diffusion in aqueous systems is not covered The data cover a period of almost 50 years from 1965 to the beginning of 2014 The over 700 entries 205 tables and 34 figures will provide an invaluable wealth of information on diffusion in this class of material

Advances in Corrosion Science and Technology Mars G. Fontana, Roger W. Staehle, 2012-12-06 This series was organized to provide a forum for review papers in the area of corrosion The aim of these reviews is to bring certain areas of corrosion science and technology into a sharp focus The volumes of this series are published approximately on a yearly basis and each contains three to five reviews The articles in each volume are selected in such a way as to be of interest both to the corrosion scientists and the corrosion technologists There is in fact a particular aim in juxtaposing these interests because of the importance of mutual interaction and interdisciplinarity so important in corrosion studies It is hoped that the corrosion scientists in this way may stay abreast of the activities in corrosion technology and vice versa In this series the term corrosion is used in its very broadest sense It includes therefore not only the degradation of metals in aqueous environment but also what is commonly referred to as high temperature oxidation Further the plan is to be even more general than these topics the series will include all solids and all environments Today engineering solids include not only metals but glasses ionic solids polymeric solids and composites of these Environments of interest must be extended to liquid metals a wide variety of gases nonaqueous electrolytes and other non aqueous liquids
