

CODE of ETHICS

PREAMBLE

Members of the Society of Professional Journalists believe that journalism is a public trust. Ethical journalism strives to ensure the free exchange of ideas with integrity.

The Society declares these four principles as the foundation of ethical journalism and encourages their use to the greatest by all people in all media.

SEEK TRUTH AND REPORT IT

Ethical journalism should be accurate and fair. Journalists should be honest and courageous in gathering, reporting and interpreting information.

Journalists should:

- Take responsibility for the accuracy of their work. Verify information before releasing it. Use original sources whenever possible.
- Remember that neither speed nor format excuses inaccuracies.
- Provide context. Take special care not to misrepresent or oversimplify in promoting, previewing or summarizing a story.
- Gather, update and correct information throughout the life of a news story.
- Be cautious when making promises, but keep the promises they make.
- Identify sources clearly. The public is entitled to as much information as possible to judge the reliability and motivations of sources.
- Consider sources' motives before promising anonymity. Reserve anonymity for sources who may face danger, retaliation or other harm, and have information that cannot be obtained otherwise. Explain why anonymity was granted.
- Diligently seek subjects of news coverage to allow them to respond to criticism or allegations of wrongdoing.
- Avoid undercover or other surreptitious methods of gathering information unless traditional, open methods will not yield information vital to the public.
- Be vigilant and strategic about holding those with power accountable. Give voice to the voiceless.
- Support the open and civil exchange of ideas, even views they find repugnant.
- Recognize a special obligation to serve a watchdog role over public officials and government. Seek to ensure that the public's business is conducted in the open.

MINIMIZE HARM

Ethical journalism should minimize harm. Journalists should exercise their discretion to report honestly and responsibly while also being fair and empathetic.

ACT INDEPENDENTLY

Ethical journalism should be free from conflicts of interest. Journalists should not let personal, financial or other considerations compromise their objectivity.

Journalists should:

- Show compassion for those who may be affected by news coverage. Use heightened sensitivity when dealing with juveniles, victims of sex crimes, and victims of natural disasters, hate crimes, or other traumatic events. Consider cultural differences in approach and treatment.
- Recognize that legal access to information differs from an ethical justification to publish or broadcast.
- Realize that private people have a greater right to control information about themselves than public figures and officials who seek power, influence or attention. Though the consequences of publishing or broadcasting personal information.
- Avoid entering into financial relationships with others.
- Balance a suspect's right to a fair trial with the public's right to know. Consider the implications of identifying criminal suspects before they have legal charges.
- Consider the long-term implications of the extended reach and permanence of publication. Provide additional and more complete information as appropriate.

ACT INDEPENDENTLY

The highest and primary obligation of ethical journalists is to serve the public.

Journalists should:

- Avoid conflicts of interest, real or perceived. Disclose unavoidable conflicts.
- Refuse gifts, favors, fees, free travel and special treatment, and avoid political and other outside activities that may compromise integrity or impartiality, or imply favoritism.
- Be wary of sources offering information to flatter or reward, don't pay for access to news. Disclose content to society outside sources, whether paid or not.
