European Competitiveness:

European Competitiveness Kirsty S. Hughes, 1993-05-06 This book analyses the key factors determining European competitiveness. It focuses in particular on the issues of internationalization of firms and markets, the role of technology and innovation, and of continuing European integration, and deals with these issues on the level of firms, industries, and countries. The competitiveness of the EC as a whole relative to the USA and Japan is also examined. Part I deals with internationalization, the organization of firms, and the activities of multinationals in Europe. Part II focuses on trends in technological competitiveness and its importance in growth and trade performance. Part III is concerned with structural change, the integration of the European market, competition and mergers, the role of the public sector, and the role of cultural differences. The book ends by addressing the role of industrial policy in the future of the Eastern European economies.

Boosting European Competitiveness Marek Belka, Ewald Nowotny, Pawel Sameck, Doris Ritzberger-Grünwald, 2016-10-28 In the global financial crisis, competitiveness gaps between Euro area countries caused additional strain. This book discusses the various dimensions of competitiveness with a special focus on Central Eastern and Southeastern Europe. With products becoming ever more technically sophisticated and global interconnectedness on a relentless rise, quality, customer orientation, and participation in production networks are as important as relative costs and prices. For Europe to proceed with convergence and to resist global competitive pressures, policies to boost productivity and innovation are therefore vital.

Enhancing European Competitiveness European Commission. Competitiveness Advisory Group, 1995. European Competitiveness Report 2000 European Commission. Enterprise DG., 2000. Enhancing European Competitiveness Commission of the European Communities. Competitiveness Advisory Group, European Commission. Competitiveness Advisory Group, 1995. Leaderless Europe Jack Hayward, 2008-05-29 A broad ranging and engaging critique of why leadership has proven so problematic during the history of European Integration.

The Competitiveness of European Industry, 1999. European Competition Law Annual 2007 Claus-Dieter Ehlermann, Mel Marquis, 2008-11-28 This volume reproduces a debate which examined the EU's enforcement policy as regards the abuse of a dominant position under Article 82 EC.

The Future of European Competitiveness Mario Draghi, 2024 Europe has been worrying about slowing growth since the start of this century. Various strategies to raise growth rates have come and gone, but the trend has remained unchanged. The foundations on which we built are now being shaken. The previous global paradigm is fading. The era of rapid world trade growth looks to have passed, with EU companies facing both greater competition from abroad and lower access to overseas markets. The EU is entering the first period in its recent history in which growth will not be supported by rising populations. This report identifies three main areas for action to reignite sustainable growth. First and most importantly, Europe must profoundly refocus its collective efforts on closing the innovation gap with the US and China, especially in advanced technologies. The second area for action is a joint plan for decarbonisation and competitiveness The third area for action is increasing security and reducing dependencies The Taxing Road to Sustainable Growth: Resource Productivity and Corporate Taxation Mark Bowler Smith,2013 This book explores one way in which a tax system might help promote competitiveness and sustainable development Focusing on the UK corporation tax it recommends the introduction of a Resource Productivity Tax Credit where resource productivity is defined as the money value of outputs relative to the money value of material resource and non renewable energy inputs The book is structured such that it first explores the legal mandate to promote competitiveness and sustainable development as contained in article 3 3 of the Treaty of the European Union It then explores what competitiveness and sustainable development actually mean particularly in an EU policy context through the lenses of Europe 2020 and the EU Sustainable Development Strategy It concludes that not only is there a great deal of common ground between competitiveness and sustainable development as objectives but that increasing resource productivity is a necessary means to those shared ends After exploring EU tax policy and the relevant rules of the UK corporation tax for evidence of any kind of focus on competitiveness and sustainable development as well as examining the suitability of corporate income taxes as policy instruments for increasing resource productivity the book concludes that there is ample scope for a statutory tax incentive to be appended to the UK corporation tax to help fulfil the article 3 mandate The headline objective of the Resource Productivity Tax Credit is to promote higher resource productivity in the trading activities of individual companies in particular targeted sectors through improvements to the knowledge base of those companies rather than through the increased use of raw materials non renewable energy and or intermediate goods

European Competition Law and Economics Roger van den Bergh,Peter D. Camesasca,2001 The aim of this book is to explore the economic fundamentals of European competition law

Europe Competing in the Global Economy European Commission. Competitiveness Advisory Group,1997 Global patterns of production and trade in manufactures have changed tremendously over the past two decades The growth of world trade has been accompanied by a rapid increase in the number of products suppliers and buyers involved in international markets At the same time the means by which manufacturers compete and collaborate have been changing The great challenges that these developments pose for policy makers and practitioners provide the basic motive for this comprehensive assessment of the underlying forces and determinants that are reshaping the world s industrial map

Regulatory Reform and Competitiveness in Europe: Vertical issues Giampaolo Galli,Jacques Pelkmans,2000 The second of two volumes this text discusses the vertical issues involved in regulatory reform The contributors describe in detail the regulatory reforms which are needed or have been initiated in nine major industrial sectors including automobiles textiles and clothing retail trade chemicals banking road transport telecoms electricity and scheduled air transport They argue that regulatory reform can more often than not help improve the competitiveness of companies while generating net growth effects for the European Union as a whole
