Filming For Amateurs:

Filming for Amateurs Paul Burnford,1940 Amateur Movie Makers ,1930 Amateur Cinema Charles Tepperman,2014-12-24 From the very beginning of cinema there have been amateur filmmakers at work It wasn't until Kodak introduced 16mm film in 1923 however that amateur moviemaking became a widespread reality and by the 1950s over a million Americans had amateur movie cameras In Amateur Cinema Charles Tepperman explores the meaning of the amateur in film history and modern visual culture In the middle decades of the twentieth century the period that saw Hollywood's rise to dominance in the global film industry a movement of amateur filmmakers created an alternative world of small scale movie production and circulation Organized amateur moviemaking was a significant phenomenon that gave rise to dozens of clubs and thousands of participants producing experimental nonfiction or short subject narratives Rooted in an examination of surviving films this book traces the contexts of advanced amateur cinema and articulates the broad aesthetic and stylistic tendencies of amateur films

Films and Filming ,1961 Amateur Movie Journal ,1928 Professional Movie Tricks for Amateurs Tamar Lane,1928 Helmuth Von Moltke and the Origins of the First World War Annika Mombauer,2001-04-19 This book explores the influence of Helmuth von Moltke Germany's Chief of the General Staff between 1906 and 1914 Based largely on previously unknown primary sources it analyses the General Staff's role in military decision making and Moltke's relationship with Kaiser Wilhelm II as well as the genesis of the Schlieffen Plan and Germany's military and political reactions to the many pre war crises Moltke's influence on Germany's political decision making was decisive helping to foster an increasingly confrontational mood The book takes specific issue with the common perception of Moltke as an ineffectual and reluctant military leader remembered primarily for the defeat at the Battle of the Marne and his alleged adulteration of the Schlieffen Plan It concludes that he was both bellicose and ambitious hoping for war the sooner the better and playing a crucial role in the outbreak and early months of the First World War

A New History of German Cinema Jennifer M. Kapczynski,Michael David Richardson,2012 A dynamic event centered exploration of the hundred year history of German language film This dynamic event centered anthology offers a new understanding of the hundred year history of German language film from the earliest days of the Kintopp to contemporary productions like The Lives of Others Each of the more than eighty essays takes a key date as its starting point and explores its significance for German film history pursuing its relationship with its social political and aesthetic moment While the essays offer ample temporal and topical spread this book emphasizes the juxtaposition of famous and unknown stories granting attention to a wide range of cinematic events Brief section introductions provide a larger historical and film historical framework that illuminates the essays within it offering both scholars and the general reader a setting for the individual texts and figures under investigation Cross references to other essays in the book are included at the close of each entry encouraging readers not only to pursue familiar trajectories in the development of German film but also to trace particular figures and motifs across genres and historical periods Together the contributions offer a new view of the multiple intersecting narratives that make up German language cinema The constellation that is thus established challenges unidirectional narratives of German film history and charts new ways of thinking about film historiography more broadly Jennifer Kapczynski is Associate Professor of German at Washington University St Louis and Michael Richardson is Associate Professor of German at Ithaca College
