Beginning Writers in the Zone of Proximal Development Elizabeth Petrick-Steward, 2012-10-12 How do young children bridge the gap between writing a story with pictures and writing with words How children learn to use written words to tell a story is a topic important to both cognitive development and early literacy instruction Using the theoretical framework developed by Vygotsky the behavior of a group of prekindergarten children as they author two consecutive pieces of writing is analyzed The children tell their stories at first with spoken words and pictures As they discuss their work in progress in public conferences they discover how to build on and combine existing skills to produce a new skill telling stories with written words Current descriptive and theoretical perspectives on beginning writing are presented in this volume with a particular focus on Vygotsky s concept of the zone of proximal development a period of sensitivity in which learning advances The proposed mechanism of change is verbal mediation talk among peers and teachers as they discuss work in progress which moves the children through the zone of proximal development An open whole language approach to literacy instruction makes the classroom in this book an ideal arena in which to observe verbal mediation in operation Children are free to question criticize and argue and in the process they collectively advance their developing ability to use written language The work is unique in that the rich and comprehensive data record is reproduced in its entirety More than 400 illustrations of the children s products two books apiece pictured before and after the children s revisions are included along with transcripts of the conferences about each of the pages permitting direct observation of the effects of verbal mediation This dynamic study documents change during a period of time when specific learning is occurring and provides strong support for the value and power of Vygotsky s theoretical framework Annual Report New York State Library,1915 Fear and Trembling/Repetition Søren Kierkegaard,2013-04-21 Presented here in a new translation with a historical introduction by the translators Fear and Trembling and Repetition are the most poetic and personal of S ren Kierkegaard s pseudonymous writings Published in 1843 and written under the names Johannes de Silentio and Constantine Constantius respectively the books demonstrate Kierkegaard s transmutation of the personal into the lyrically religious Each work uses as a point of departure Kierkegaard s breaking of his engagement to Regine Olsen his sacrifice of that single individual From this beginning Fear and Trembling becomes an exploration of the faith that transcends the ethical as in Abraham s willingness to sacrifice his son Isaac at God s command This faith which persists in the face of the absurd is rewarded finally by the return of all that the faithful one is willing to sacrifice Repetition discusses the most profound implications of unity of personhood and of identity within change beginning with the ironic story of a young poet who cannot fulfill the ethical claims of his engagement because of the possible consequences of his marriage The poet finally despairs of repetition renewal in the ethical sphere as does his advisor and friend Constantius in the aesthetic sphere The book ends with Constantius intimation of a third kind of repetition in the religious sphere Annual Report National Research Council (U.S.).
