Final Rain:

Living in Anticipation of the End-Time Edwin Zackrison, 2022-07-19 Not long ago those who wrote about the end time were preachers the more fundamentalist the more extreme by some standards The end is coming soon they said and cartoons were rampant with guys carrying placards captioned by The End is Near From the time of Christ whose noncritical predictions included such inspiration for the placards the religious prophets could not resist emphasis on such topics Today things are different The scientists and politicians make the predictions Twelve More Years is what we hear from the latter But they don't attack with religious terms They speak of time in the context of climate change and global warming They do not agree on how to interpret the evidence but the religionists also had trouble with agreement Strange interpretations of biblical texts have now gone the way of so called science Various elucidations carry one thing in common none gain consensus Some arguments enter discussions by censuring those who disagree with them Their opponents are not allowed to speak They must remain silent They are called nasty names and unfair methods are used to punish them They try to stop the incongruous from speaking at all Living in the end time demonstrates the conflict between good and evil The Florida Area Cumulus Experiment W. L. Woodley, Robert I. Sax, 1976 The Florida Area Cumulus Experiment FACE has developed as the logical extension of the successful series of single cloud experiments conducted by NOAA's Experimental Meteorology Laboratory now the Cumulus Group of the National Hurricane and Experimental Meteorology Laboratory over the Caribbean and Florida Although the results of FACE studies have been painstakingly reported in the literature conversations with colleagues have made it obvious that the empirical and theoretical foundations for this experiment are not well understood Confusion still exists in the minds of some as to the rationale for FACE and its design The need exists then for a detailed exposition of all aspects of the FACE effort for consideration and discussion by the scientific community With this report we attempt to fulfill this need Final Report on the Survey and Settlement Operations in the Darbhanga District, 1896 to 1903 Bihar and Orissa (India). Department of Land Records and Surveys, John Henry Kerr, 1926 Response Farming in Rainfed Agriculture J. Ian Stewart, 1988 Spatial and Temporal Variations of the Turbulent Fluxes of Heat, Momentum, and Water Vapor Over Lake Ontario During IFYGL Bradford R. Bean, 1975 During the 1972 IFYGL alert periods the highly instrumented NOAA RFF DC 6 aircraft was used to record the time series of wind temperature and water vapor at heights ranging from 18 to 300 m above the surface of Lake Ontario The aircraft was equipped with a gust probe system a fast response thermistor a microwave refractometer for water vapor measurements and a downward pointing IR system as well as the normal in flight measurement of standard meteorological parameters The time series records have been found to display a highly intermittent nature This is especially the case for evaporation when in the fall Polar Continental outbreaks move across the lake In particular such an outbreak of cold dry air moved across the lake at 12 15 m s⁻¹ on 9 October 1972 This resulted in the air temperature at 30 m above the lake to drop from 12 to 6 C while the evaporation rate increased to more than 1 cm day 1 This may be compared with the 0.5 cm day⁻¹ normal evaporation observed in the tropics during BOMEX. Furthermore, IR lake surface temperatures show cold regions 5°C along the north shore, presumably due to strong upwelling, while the center and south shore regions of the lake were of the order of 12 to 15°C. The turbulent flux quantities of momentum, heat, and water vapor were obtained by the eddy correlation technique, and their spectra were determined at several locations over the lake surface for 3-minute sampling lengths. At the aircraft speed of 92 m s⁻¹, this represents a flight path of 17 km for both along-wind and constant fetch patterns. The spectra demonstrate the tendency for the peak value to march to higher wavelengths with increasing height.

From the beginning of agriculture until about 1950, increased food production came almost entirely from expanding the cropland base. Since 1950, however, the yield per unit of land area for major crops has increased dramatically. Much of the increase in yields was because of increased inputs of energy. Between 1950 and 1985, the farm tractor fleet quadrupled, world irrigated area tripled, and use of fertilizer increased ninefold. Between 1950 and 1985, the total energy used in world agriculture increased 6.9 times. Irrigation played a particularly important role in the rapid increase in food production between 1950 and 1985. The world's irrigated land in 1950 totaled 94 million hectares but increased to 140 million by 1960, 198 million by 1970, and to 271 million hectares in 1985. However, the current rate of expansion has slowed to less than 1% per year. The world population continues to increase, and agricultural production by the year 2000 will have to be 50 to 60% greater than in 1980 to meet demands. This continued demand for food and fiber, coupled with the sharp decline in the growth rate of irrigation development, means that much of the additional agricultural production in future years must come from cultivated land that is not irrigated. Agricultural production will be expanded in the arid and semiarid regions because these regions make up vast areas in developing countries where populations are rapidly rising.
