Psychotherapeutic Change Through the Group Process Leonard Blank, 2017-07-05 Psychotherapeutic Change through the Group Process discusses the relation between the properties of groups and therapeutic change The purpose is to develop a view of groups that accounts for the diversity complexity and fluidity of the group situation The view examines the group in depth attending not only to overt events but also to covert aspects of specific situations The work addresses manifest behaviors underlying motivations and the cognitive rational aspects of the group It explores the intense affect which may be generated under conditions of group interaction not merely to the group or individual but to the individual in the group and to the group as the context for personal experience and change The research presented here was initially explored in small group studies Separate investigations considered the ways in which patients and therapists view group events the nature of deviation and the development of group standards They consider factors associated with therapeutic improvement and therapeutic failure and characteristic concerns of early sessions These plus several discussions of theory and methodology have been published separately The authors working procedure has been to study intensively a relatively small number of groups relying upon careful observation of natural groups rather than upon laboratory experimentation The overall effort has been to understand the processes of therapy groups in all their clinical richness and intricacy and yet to impose a scientific discipline and control on our analyses This has meant a continuing attempt to develop appropriate analytic procedures so that clinical analyses can be as firmly rooted as possible in concrete data and reproducible methods This book is a unique effort at the scientific grounding of social work practice Working with Groups Walter M.

Lifton, 1966 From the Blurb Working With Groups and using them properly is the basic key to a successful democratic society Groups can free the individual rather than confine him they represent an inadequately used resource This book shows how groups and group action are related to important contemporary social concerns including The rising demand for equal rights from various segments of our society The growing recognition of critical shortages in the helping professions along with an increasing emphasis on the interdisciplinary approach The impact of new educational media on the teaching learning process The author presents group techniques which consider the means as determining the final goal He relates current pressures of society to the use of group techniques as a way to solve problems and gives an understanding of the yardsticks to be used to determine the use and appropriateness of specific group techniques He presents a philosophy of education which emphasizes the importance of early childhood experiences and the role to be played by the school counselor of tomorrow
