Growing Up In The 1950s:

Growing up in Adelaide in the 1950's Susan Blackburn,2013-02-01 Growing up in the fifties was a time of isolation and innocence We didn't know what was going on in the rest of the world We could only compare ourselves with those around us So writes Max Lees in his reminiscence Freedom one of the 13 contributions to this delightful evocation of childhood edited by Susan Blackburn An associate professor at Monash University and a specialist in Southeast Asian politics who grew up in suburban Adelaide Blackburn asked friends and acquaintances to join her in trying to recreate the experience of childhood in that place in that time Most of the memories in this book are of happy sunlit childhoods but there are shadows too Polio was a constant fear and unwanted children were often neglected in orphanages On the whole though the experiences of the contributors were positive and they look back on the fifties with enjoyment inviting us into their childhood and teenage worlds

Growing Up in the 1950s C. A. R. Hills,1983-01-01 Describes the family life education urban development recreation and emergence of teenagers in Great Britain during the prosperous 1950s My Family History Lavern Lincoln,2017-07-03 What has provided me the greatest satisfaction in life has been giving birth and raising My children Reginald Lincoln and Kimberly Lincoln Gardner Being an excellent mother Household provider to encourage positivity professionalism and educational values in my children To instill in my children to always pursue their dreams in life and to live as productive and responsible adult to pursue my dreams in life Educationally and professionally

Growing Up Simple George Arnold,2003 The story of five kids growing up in 1950s Texas Growing Up in the 50s in Middle America James Roethe,2020 I grew up in Monroe Wisconsin during the 1950s In January of 1950 I turned eight years old I graduated from Monroe High School in the Spring of 1960 So begins James Roethe's meaningful and appealing reflections on what it meant to grow up in the midwest in a time of great development in the United States of America His anecdotes here are mostly personal with a focus on family education and work as it happened then in small town Wisconsin

1950s Childhood Janet Shepherd,John Shepherd,2014-02-10 Children of the 1950s have much to look back on with fondness Muffin the Mule Andy Pandy and Dennis the Menace became part of the family for many while for others the freedom of the riverbank or railway platform was a haven away from the watchful eyes of parents The postwar welfare state offered free orange juice milk and healthcare and there was lots to do whether football in the street a double bill at the cinema a game of Ludo or a spot of roller skating But there were also hardships wartime rationing persisted into the 50s a trip to the dentist was a painful ordeal and at school discipline was harsh and the Eleven Plus exam was a formidable milestone Janet Shepherd and John Shepherd examine what it was like to grow up part of the Baby Boomer generation showing what life was like at home and at school and introducing a new phenomenon the teenager

Hoy, 2006 The Flint Hills are America's last tallgrass prairie a green enclave set in the midst of the farmland of eastern Kansas Known as the home of the Big Beef Steer these rugged hills have produced exemplary cowboys both the ranch and rodeo varieties whose hard work has given them plenty of material for equally good stories Jim Hoy grew up in the Flint Hills on a ranch at Cassoday that's been in his family for five generations and boasts roots as deep as those of bluestem grass in black soil bottomland He now draws on this area's rich cowboy lore as well as on his own experience working cattle breaking horses and rodeoing to write a folk history of the Flint Hills spanning a century and a half Hoy blends history folklore and memoir to conjure for readers the tallgrass prairies of his boyhood in a book that richly recalls the ranching life and the people who lived it Here are cowboys and outlaws rodeo stars and runaway horses ordinary folks and the stuff of legends Hoy introduces readers to the likes of Lou Hart a top hand with the Crocker Brothers from 1906 to 1910 whose poetic paean to ranch life circulated orally for fifty years before seeing print And he tracks down the legend of Bud Gillette considered by his neighbors the world's fastest man until he fell in with an unscrupulous promoter. He even unravels the mystery of a lone grave supposed to be that of the first cowboy in the Flint Hills. Hoy also explains why a good horse makes up for having to work with exasperating cattle and why not all horses are created or trained equal. And he traces Flint Hills cattle culture from the days of the trail drive through the railroad years to today's trucking era with most railroad stockyards torn down and only one section house left standing. Writes Hoy, "I feed on the stories of the Hills and the characters who tell them as the cattle feed on the grasses." His love of the land shines throughout a book so real that readers will swear they hear the click of horseshoes on flint rock with every turn of the page. The Best of Times Alison Pressley, 1999. Simpler Times; Better Times Jack Atchison, 2013-10-07. Many of us who are sixty years of age or older believe that we grew up in an era, the 1940s and 1950s, when life for a child was simpler and better than it is today. Younger people might find this hard to believe because we were certainly less affluent than as the middle class really didn't take hold until in the early 1950s we suffered illnesses that children do not suffer today and we lacked many of the devices and products that are commonplace now. Most of our homes did not have air conditioning or even gas or electric furnaces for that matter. We did not have refrigerators, freezers, microwaves, dishwashers, washers or dryers, televisions, CD or DVD players, touch tone or cell phones, electronic games, vacuum cleaners, coffee makers, portable radios, or computers. More than one car in a family was a rarity. There were no school buses; we walked to and from school. We walked to the store and lugged grocery bags home. We walked to the movies or wherever else we wanted to go. At around the age of ten we started to stand on the curb, stuck our thumb out, and hitch hiked longer distances, or if we owned one we rode a bike. Most yards didn't have fences. Most people did not lock their car doors or the doors to their homes. At school, home, or even at a neighbor's house, if you misbehaved, you likely got spanked on the seat of your pants. If you acted up in school, you got spanked. If you continued to act up, you were suspended from school. And if that didn't get your attention, you were expelled. When younger people hear about life in the 1940s and 1950s, they tend to focus on what we did not have and the seemingly harsh discipline to which we as kids were subjected. But what they don't focus on, as we older folks do, is how very rich and uncomplicated our lives were in those days. Our playgrounds were vast and varied: fields, swamps, woods, backyards, parking lots, and streets, all safe to play in day or night. Our games were simple, challenging, and fun, and the only equipment required was a tin can, two sticks, and two rags, a flashlight, a ball, any kind of a ball, our feet, or a little snow, no money required, just imagination. We didn't have television, but we did have drive-in theaters. We didn't have fast food places, but we did have soda fountains, candy stores, ice cream parlors.

and ice chests full of cold soda pop at every gas station We didn't have big box stores but we had five and dimes and dairy stores that sold gallon jugs of fruit punch and lemonade When we played we not adults determined the game to be played picked the playing venue established the rules chose the teams refereed the game and if we decided to keep the score We played not to win or lose but to have fun And we played almost every day snow rain or shine sweltering hot or freezing cold from the time school let out until it was time for bed breaking only when we had to do homework or eat dinner We had incredible freedom to choose how we would spend our days We had the latitude to try new things to take chances to make mistakes and sometimes bad choices and to learn from these experiences good and bad The brief stories in this book describe how two boys lived and matured during those wonderful days and tell about the people who accompanied them during their journey through childhood The stories were written to show my children and grandchildren how their father's and grandfather's childhood differed from theirs As with any trip down memory lane our recollections may vary slightly from the actual events and while I'm not aware that is the case some of the stories in this book might be affected by this same affliction In any event this was life as I remember it to have been Hopefully the stories will entertain and bring back fond memories to those of my age who elect to read them
