Dangerous Guests Ken Miller,2014-09-19 In Dangerous Guests Ken Miller reveals how wartime pressures nurtured a budding patriotism in the ethnically diverse revolutionary community of Lancaster Pennsylvania During the War for Independence American revolutionaries held more than thirteen thousand prisoners both British regulars and their so called Hessian auxiliaries in makeshift detention camps far from the fighting As the Americans principal site for incarcerating enemy prisoners of war Lancaster stood at the nexus of two vastly different revolutionary worlds one national the other intensely local Captives came under the control of local officials loosely supervised by state and national authorities Concentrating the prisoners in the heart of their communities brought the revolutionaries enemies to their doorstep with residents now facing a daily war at home Many prisoners openly defied their hosts fleeing plotting and rebelling often with the clandestine support of local loyalists By early 1779 General George Washington furious over the captives ongoing attempts to subvert the American war effort branded them dangerous guests in the bowels of our Country The challenge of creating an autonomous national identity in the newly emerging United States was nowhere more evident than in Lancaster where the establishment of a detention camp served as a flashpoint for new conflict in a community already unsettled by stark ethnic linguistic and religious differences Many Lancaster residents soon sympathized with the Hessians detained in their town while the loyalist population considered the British detainees to be the true patriots of the war Miller demonstrates that in Lancaster the notably local character of the war reinforced not only preoccupations with internal security but also novel commitments to cause and country

Bragg, 2007 Lavishly illustrated with seventy four color plates and fifty black and white photographs and drawings Never for Want of Powder tells the story of a world class munitions factory constructed by the Confederacy in 1861 the only large scale permanent building project undertaken by a government often characterized as lacking modern industrial values In this comprehensive examination of the powder works five scholars a historian physicist curator architectural historian and biographer bring their combined expertise to the task of chronicling gunpowder production during the Civil War In doing so they make a major contribution to understanding the history of wartime technology and Confederate ingenuity Early in the war President Jefferson Davis realized the Confederacy's need to supply its own gunpowder Accordingly Davis selected Col George Washington Rains to build a gunpowder factory An engineer and West Point graduate Rains relied primarily on a written pamphlet rather than on practical experience in building the powder mill yet he succeeded in designing a model of efficiency and safety He sited the facilities at Augusta Georgia because of the city's central location canal transportation access to water power railroad facilities and relative security from attack As much a story of people as of machinery Never for Want of Powder recounts the ingenuity of the individuals involved with the project A cadre of talented subordinates including Frederick Wright C Shaler Smith William Pendleton and Isadore P Girardey assisted Rains to a degree not previously appreciated by historians This volume also documents the coordinated outflow of gunpowder and ammunition and Rains's difficulty in preparing for the defense of Augusta Today a lone chimney along the Savannah River stands as the only reminder of the munitions facility that once occupied that site With its detailed reproductions of architectural and mechanical schematics and its expansive vista on the Confederacy Never for Want of
