Global Change And Intellectual Property Agencies An Institutional Perspective:

Global Change and Intellectual Property Agencies G. Bruce Doern, 1999 Global change affects all areas of public policy and crucial aspects of governing institutions National and international intellectual property IP agencies are increasingly at the fulcrum of such change but are among the least well examined of governing and policy realms Among the oldest agencies of government they are moving from a long era of contented obscurity to that of increasing political and economic exposure and controversy This is the first book to examine IP agencies in the context of this transformation Taking a basic institutional perspective the book examines the changes in and relationships among four national and international IP agencies the patent offices of the US UK Canada and Australia the World Intellectual Property Office the European Patent Office and the World Trade Organization Focusing on the 1990s the book traces institutional changes that centre on the core trade off in intellectual property policy between protection and dissemination of intellectual property These are examined in relation to the two broad clusters of interests that operate around the protection versus dissemination functions The former is dominated by big business and the IP professions and the latter by much more dispersed and emerging interests

Intellectual Property Rights in the WTO and Developing Countries Jayashree Watal, 2001-02-23 Although it is common knowledge that the compliance of developing countries with the Agreement on Trade Related Aspects of Intellectual Property Rights TRIPS has become a serious stumbling block in the WTO agenda the underlying reasons why this is so have not been dispassionately analyzed until the appearance of this book Here for the first time is a thorough and secure foundation on which international trade lawyers and business people can build a global intellectual property regime that is both productive and fair The implementation of the TRIPS regime with its enormous effect on national and global strategies for healthcare agriculture and the environment among other crucial sectors of the world economy is clearly among the most critical projects currently under way in the field of international relations As a former TRIPS negotiator for India Jayashree Watal brings great authority to her account of the benefits and pitfalls of TRIPS compliance for developing countries She provides a detailed understanding of how TRIPS was negotiated at the Uruguay Round how various countries have implemented it so far and how the WTO monitors compliance She reveals how the WTO dispute settlement process has worked to date in matters involving TRIPS and how it is likely to deal with new issues that arise Most importantly she explains how developing countries can interpret TRIPS to their best advantage and how to ensure that the constructive ambiguity that characterizes the agreement remains flexible

Bruce Doern,Markus Sharaput,2000 Defining and regulating intellectual property is a growing industry for information brokers economists and the legal profession While other authors have documented the intellectual property IP market and its laws copyright patents trademarks and licensing Bruce Doern and Markus Sharaput are the first Canadian political scientists to make the leap from simple description to detailed analysis The authors delve into the politics of big business and protectionism lobbies in the healthcare industry regional imbalances equitable dissemination and internal pressures Among the conclusions advanced by Doern and Sharaput is that the main impetus for change in Canada has come ultimately from American corporate and political forces seeking to strengthen IP protection at the expense of IP dissemination The authors show that Canada initially resisted such pressures but ultimately adopted the American influence as being in Canada s interest in the new age of innovation Intellectual property user and dissemination oriented interests are emerging which will likely change the politics of IP in the first decade of the next century Future politics in Canada will indeed shift from its outmoded limited propensity for micro economic policy to a timely recognition of the importance of knowledge and innovation at century s end Abstracts of Public Administration, Development, and Environment ,2009 The Common Property Resource Digest ,2003 World Development Report ,1999 Climate Change ,1998 Contributed articles with reference to Developing countries
