Abstract—The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 10-week training program on the heart rate (HR) and blood pressure (BP) of sedentary, middle-aged men. The subjects were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 10-week training program consisting of three sessions per week of aerobic exercise. The control group did not exercise. The HR and BP were measured at baseline and at the end of the 10-week training program. The results showed that the exercise group had a significant decrease in both HR and BP compared to the control group. The HR decreased from 72 to 68 beats per minute, and the BP decreased from 120/80 to 110/70 mmHg. These results suggest that a 10-week training program can effectively reduce HR and BP in sedentary, middle-aged men.

- The wall-mount installation is no longer "the standard"
 - demands more wall strength with the addition of an extra support structure, known as a "backer," and also may require the manager to be inside of the closet.
- The wall-mounts do not do away with the need for a VESA
 - standard mount specification, as the design of the screen may still differ depending on the wall-mount type specifications.
- The wall-mounts have many benefits. They may damage the product or reduce the product's life, leading to the general rule: "anything that can break or come apart is a bad thing."
- The new, fixed-mount design would be the better choice
 - as it is easier to install, better to preserve the screen's life span, and

Future Research

[illegible]

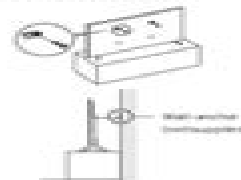

Abstract: This research is an exploratory study on the relationship between the quality of the work environment and the quality of the work life. The study is based on a survey of 100 employees in a large company. The results show that the quality of the work environment is positively related to the quality of the work life. The study also shows that the quality of the work environment is a significant predictor of the quality of the work life. The study has implications for the design of the work environment and the management of the work life.
