The history of the origin and career of the two Slav States Poland and Russia is interesting not merely because it contains a vast number of surprising scenes and marvellous pictures of life not merely because it gives us a kaleidoscope as it were of the acts of men but because these acts in all their variety fall into groups which may be referred each to its proper source and origin and each group contains facts that concern the most serious problems of history and political development The history of these two States should be studied as one or rather as two parts of one history if we are to discover and grasp the meaning of either part fully When studied as a whole this history gives us the life story of the greater portion of the Slav race placed between two hostile forces the Germans on the west the Mongols and Tartars on the east The advance of the Germans on the Slav tribes and later on Poland presents perhaps the best example in history of the methods of European civilization The entire Baltic coast from Lubeck eastward was converted to Christianity by the Germans at the point of the sword The duty of rescuing these people from the errors of paganism formed the moral pretext for conquering them and taking their lands The warrior was accompanied by the missionary followed by the political colonist The people of the country deprived of their lands were reduced to slavery and if any escaped this lot they were men from the higher classes who joined the conqueror in the capacity of assistant oppressors The work was long and doubtful The Germans made many failures for their management was often very bad The Slavs west of the Oder were stubborn and under good leadership might have been invincible but the leadership did not come and to the Germans at last came the Hohenzollerns For the serious student there is no richer field of labor than the history of Poland and the Slavs of the Baltic which is inseparable from the history of Mark Brandenburg and the two military orders the Teutonic Knights and the Knights of the Sword The conquest of Russia by the Mongols the subjection of Europeans to Asiatics not Asiatics of the south but warriors from cold regions led by men of genius for such were Genghis Khan Tamerlane and the lieutenants sent to the west was an affair of incomparably greater magnitude than the German wars on the Baltic The physical grip of the Mongol on Russia was irresistible There was nothing for the Russian princes to do but submit if they wished to preserve their people from dissolution They had to bow down to every whim of the conqueror suffer indignity insult death that is death of individuals The Russians endured for a long time without apparent result But they were studying their conquerors mastering their policy and they mastered it so well that finally the Prince of Moscow made use of the Mongols to complete the union of eastern Russia and reduce all the provincial princes of the country

his own relatives to the position of ordinary landholders subject to himself The difference between the Poles and Russians seems to be this that the Russians saw through the policy of their enemies and then overcame them while the Poles either did not understand the Germans or if they did did not overcome them though they had the power This Slav history is interesting to the man of science it is interesting also to the practical statesman because there is no country in the Eastern hemisphere whose future may be considered outside of Russian influence no country whose weal or woe may not become connected in some way with Russia At the same time there are no states studied by so few and misunderstood by so many as the former Commonwealth of Poland whose people brave and brilliant but politically unsuccessful have received more sympathy than any other within the circle of civilization and Russia whose people in strength of character and intellectual gifts are certainly among the first of the Aryan race though many men have felt free to describe them in terms exceptionally harsh and frequently unjust
