Immunogenetics Frank T. Christiansen, Brian D. Tait, 2012-06-08 The HLA molecules are important regulators of the immune response through mediating antigen presentation and interaction between key immune mediating cells They are also the major histocompatibility barriers to transplantation which is the clinical paradigm of the self versus non self concept It is now recognized that this diverse range of gene systems involved in the control of the immune response have been shown to be important in many aspects of clinical practice As a result many new molecular and cellular methods have been developed for identifying these genes and their polymorphisms and immunogenetic laboratories specializing in these methods have developed to support transplantation and other clinical programs

Immunogenetics Methods and Applications in Clinical Practice focuses on methods for human clinical practice The emphasis rests on those assays which are of established or potential clinical utility and are likely to be included in the repertoire of tests provided by a routine diagnostic and service laboratory This volume also contains several review chapters of the MHC complex the KIR complex the human immunoglobulin allotypes as well as reviews of the methods for the detection of alloreactive NK cells and the detection of HLA antibodies by solid phase assays Written in the successful Methods in Molecular Biology™ series format chapters include introductions to their respective topics lists of the necessary materials and reagents step by step readily reproducible protocols and notes on troubleshooting and avoiding known pitfalls Authoritative and easily accessible Immunogenetics Methods and Applications in Clinical Practice seeks to serve both the immunogenetics community and the wider scientific community with a collection of detailed information and helpful tips attained by many years of experience in the field Current Catalog ,1988 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70 Essential Immunology Ivan Maurice Roitt,1974 Immunologie New Zealand Medical Journal ,1973 Methods in Immunology Justine S.
