Help One Another Cook:

Eliza Cook's Journal, 1852 Cooking in Other Women's Kitchens, Enhanced Ebook Rebecca Sharpless, 2013-02-01 As African American women left the plantation economy behind many entered domestic service in southern cities and towns Cooking was one of the primary jobs they performed feeding generations of white families and in the process profoundly shaping southern foodways and culture In Cooking in Other Women's Kitchens Domestic Workers in the South 1865-1960 Rebecca Sharpless argues that in the face of discrimination long workdays and low wages African American cooks worked to assert measures of control over their own lives As employment opportunities expanded in the twentieth century most African American women chose to leave cooking for more lucrative and less oppressive manufacturing clerical or professional positions Through letters autobiography and oral history Sharpless evokes African American women's voices from slavery to the open economy examining their lives at work and at home The enhanced electronic version of the book includes twenty letters photographs first person narratives and other documents each embedded in the text where it will be most meaningful Featuring nearly 100 pages of new material the enhanced e book offers readers an intimate view into the lives of domestic workers while also illuminating the journey a historian takes in uncovering these stories Culinary Colonialism, Caribbean Cookbooks, and Recipes for National Independence Keja L. Valens, 2024-02-16 Women across the Caribbean have been writing reading and exchanging cookbooks since at least the turn of the nineteenth century These cookbooks are about much more than cooking Through cookbooks Caribbean women and a few men have shaped embedded and contested colonial and domestic orders delineated the contours of independent national cultures and transformed tastes for independence into flavors of domestic autonomy Culinary Colonialism Caribbean Cookbooks and Recipes for National Independence integrates new documents into the Caribbean archive and presents them in a rare pan Caribbean perspective The first book length consideration of Caribbean cookbooks Culinary Colonialism joins a growing body of work in Caribbean studies and food studies that considers the intersections of food writing race class gender and nationality A selection of recipes culled from the archive that Culinary Colonialism assembles allows readers to savor the confluence of culinary traditions and local specifications that connect and distinguish national cuisines in the Caribbean Between Field and Cooking Pot Florence E. Babb, 2010-06-04 From reviews of the first edition Between Field and Cooking Pot offers details of the daily lives of marketwomen in the central Andean departmental capital of Huaraz A welcome addition to studies of women and international development this book contains a wealth of firsthand material collected through informal participant observation as well as formal interviews and analysis of statistical data The book encourages us to imagine how the dynamic culture of marketwomen might intersect with the construction representation and effects of class and gender American Anthropologist The book has a clear and readable style moving easily between vignettes of marketwomen's lives descriptions of the markets themselves and surveys of the theoretical literature Babb's long close involvement with the Huaraz markets is apparent As someone who has spent a lot of time in Andean markets I found the book pleasurable to read because it recreated the experience of the marketplace so well American Ethnologist This revised edition of Between Field and Cooking Pot offers an updated appraisal of what neoliberal politics and economics mean in the lives of marketwomen in the nineties based on new fieldwork conducted in 1997 Babb also reflects on how recent currents in feminist and anthropological studies have caused her to rethink some aspects of Andean marketers in Peruvian culture and society Quarterly Representing the Minnesota Educational, Philanthropic, Correctional and Penal Institutions Minnesota.
