ENTANGLING
RELATIONS

AMERICAN FOREIGN POLICY IN ITS CENTURY

Entangling Relations

Michael Brecher, Frank P. Harvey

Entangling Relations:

Entangling Relations David A. Lake, 2020-07-21 Throughout what publisher Henry Luce dubbed the American century the United States has wrestled with two central questions Should it pursue its security unilaterally or in cooperation with others If the latter how can its interests be best protected against opportunism by untrustworthy partners In a major attempt to explain security relations from an institutionalist approach David A Lake shows how the answers to these questions have differed after World War I during the Cold War and today In the debate over whether to join the League of Nations the United States reaffirmed its historic policy of unilateralism After World War II however it broke decisively with tradition and embraced a new policy of cooperation with partners in Europe and Asia Today the United States is pursuing a new strategy of cooperation forming ad hoc coalitions and evincing an unprecedented willingness to shape but then work within the prevailing international consensus on the appropriate goals and means of foreign policy In interpreting these three defining moments of American foreign policy Lake draws on theories of relational contracting and poses a general theory of security relationships He arrays the variety of possible security relationships on a continuum from anarchy to hierarchy and explains actual relations as a function of three key variables the benefits from pooling security resources and efforts with others the expected costs of opportunistic behavior by partners and governance costs Lake systematically applies this theory to each of the defining moments of twentieth century American foreign policy and develops its broader implications for the study of international relations ENTANGLING RELATIONS, 2002 Realism and Institutionalism in International Studies

Michael Brecher, Frank P. Harvey, 2009-12-11 Realism and Institutionalism in International Studies represents a unique collection of original essays by foremost scholars in the field of International Studies Six essays advocate critique or revise Realism the theoretical paradigm that explains international politics by emphasizing security competition and war among states The remaining four essays address Institutionalism the paradigm that offers explanations for the formation maintenance variation and significance of international institutions The authors reflect on the strengths and weaknesses of these approaches and suggest research agendas for the future Together this volume provides an accessible and wide ranging survey of the issues concerning two major paradigms in International Studies This volume will be of interest to scholars and students alike and will undoubtedly determine the shape of future research Millennial Reflections on International Studies Michael Brecher, Frank P.
