Fundable Knowledge:

Learning to Rival Linda Flower, Elenore Long, Lorraine Higgins, 2000-04-01 Learning to Rival tells the inside story of college and high school writers learning to rival to actively seek rival hypotheses and negotiate alternative perspectives on charged questions. It shows how this interdisciplinary literate practice alters with the context of use and how in learning to rival in school and out students must often negotiate conflicts not apparent to instructors. This study of the rival hypothesis stance, a powerful literate practice claimed by both humanities and science, initially posed two questions: how does the rival hypothesis stance define itself as a literate practice as we move across the boundaries of disciplines and genres of school and community? how do learners crossing these boundaries interpret and use the family of literate practices, especially in situations that pose problems of intercultural understanding? Over the course of this project with urban teenagers and minority college students, the rival hypothesis stance emerged as a generative and powerful tool for intercultural inquiry, posing in turn a new question: how can the practice of rivaling support the difficult and essential art of intercultural interpretation in education? The authors present the story of a literate practice that moves across communities as well as the stories of students who are learning to rival across the curriculum. Learning to Rival offers an active strategic approach to multiculturalism, addressing how people negotiate and use difference to solve problems. In the spirit of John Dewey's experimental way of knowing, it presents a multifaceted approach to literacy research, combining contemporary research methods to show the complexity of rivaling as a literate practice and the way it is understood and used by a variety of writers. As a resource for scholars, teachers, and administrators in writing across the curriculum, studies writing program administration, service learning, and community-based projects, as well as literacy, rhetoric, and composition, this volume reveals how learning a new literate practice can force students to encounter and negotiate conflicts. It also provides a model of an intercultural inquiry that uses difference to understand a shared problem. An African Athens Philippe-Joseph Salazar, 2002-02 This volume analyzes how public rhetoric, argumentation, and discourse led to the successful change in government in South Africa. Intended for scholars and students in rhetoric, speech, political communication, persuasion, and related areas. Advances in Discourse Studies Vijay Bhatia, John Flowerdew, Rodney H. Jones, 2008-03-10 Methods of approaching the study of discourse have developed rapidly in the last ten years, influenced by a growing interdisciplinary spirit among linguistics and anthropology, sociology, cognitive and cultural psychology, and cultural studies, as well as among established sub-fields within linguistics itself. Among the more recent developments are an increasing critical turn in discourse analysis, a growing interest in historical, ethnographic, and corpus-based approaches to discourse, more concern with the social contexts in which discourse occurs, the social actions that it is used to take, and the identities that are constructed through it, as well as a reevaluation of what counts as discourse to include multi-modal texts and interaction. Advances in Discourse Studies brings together contributions from leading scholars in the field investigating the historical and theoretical relationships between new advances in discourse studies and pointing towards new directions for the future of the discipline Featuring discussion questions classroom projects and recommended readings at the end of each section as well as case studies illustrating each approach discussed this is an invaluable resource for students of interdisciplinary discourse analysis

Interacting With Audiences Ann M. Blakeslee, 2000-10 This volume examines how scientists learn about and then address their audiences studying scientific rhetoric in actual practice For scholars and students in scientific and technical writing rhetoric studies of science and related areas

Writing/Disciplinarity Paul Prior, 2013-11-05 Over the past century the explosive growth of scientific technical and cultural disciplines has profoundly affected our daily lives However processes of enculturation in sites such as graduate education that have helped to form these disciplines have received very limited research attention In those sites graduate students write diverse documents including course papers departmental examinations theses and dissertations grant and fellowship applications and disciplinary publications Thus writing is one of the central domains of enculturation an activity through which graduate students and professors display and negotiate disciplinary knowledge genres identities and institutional contexts This volume explores this intersection of writing and disciplinary enculturation through a series of ethnographic case studies These case studies provide the most thorough descriptions available today of the lived experience of graduate seminars combining analysis of classroom talk students texts and professor s written responses institutional contexts students representations of their writing and its contexts and professors representations of their tasks and their students Given the complexities that the ethnographic data displayed the author found that conventional notions of writing as a process of transcription and of disciplines as unified discourse communities were inadequate As such this book also offers an in depth exploration of sociohistoric theory in relation to writing and disciplinary enculturation Specific case studies introduce apply and further elaborate notions of writing as literate activity authorship as mediated by other people and artifacts classroom tasks as speech genres enculturation as the interplay of authoritative and internally persuasive discourses and disciplinarity as a deeply heterogeneous laminated and dialogic process This blend of research and theory should be of interest to scholars and students in such fields as writing studies rhetoric writing across the curriculum applied linguistics English for academic purposes science and technology studies higher education and the ethnography of communication

Foundations of the American Century Inderjeet Parmar, 2012-04-03 Inderjeet Parmar reveals the complex interrelations shared mindsets and collaborative efforts of influential public and private organizations in the building of American hegemony Focusing on the involvement of the Ford Rockefeller and Carnegie foundations in U S foreign affairs Parmar traces the transformation of America from an isolationist nation into the world s only superpower all in the name of benevolent stewardship Parmar begins in the 1920s with the establishment of these foundations and their system of top down elitist scientific giving which focused more on managing social political and economic change than on solving modern society s structural problems Consulting rare documents and other archival materials he recounts how the American intellectuals academics and policy makers affiliated with these organizations institutionalized such elitism which then bled into the machinery of U S foreign policy and became regarded as the essence of modernity America hoped to replace Britain in the role of global hegemon and created the necessary political ideological military and institutional capacity to do so yet far from being objective the Ford Rockefeller and Carnegie foundations often advanced U S interests at the expense of other nations Incorporating case studies of American philanthropy in Nigeria Chile and Indonesia Parmar boldly exposes the knowledge networks underwriting American dominance in the twentieth century American Book Publishing Record ,1997 Handbook of University and Professional Careers in School Psychology Randy G.
