

NATURAL SELECTION

SURVIVAL OF THE FITTEST

Organisms whose unique genetic characteristics are better suited to their environments have a greater chance of surviving and passing these traits onto their offspring.

Over time, this results in species changing, and becoming more adapted to their environments.

NATURAL SELECTION PROCESS

V

Variation

No two organisms share identical DNA, and as such, natural differences exist within populations.

I

Inheritance

Traits are passed down from parents to their children, through genes.

It's a good thing my neck evolved to be long, so I can feed on leaves high up in trees that other animals can't reach!

S

Selection

Nature selects the unique traits to be passed down that help an organism survive and reproduce.

T

Time

Over time, favorable traits increase in the population through reproduction.

A

Adaptation

When a previously unique trait becomes common in a population, the species has changed and adapted.
